
How can I help people in need?

Posted by jessking85 - 2009/01/16 18:43

I moved to the Coast in late May and I love it!!! But recently I've been thinking a lot about what I can do for the community - how can I effectively help people in need in the Sunshine Coast area?

So, I was wondering if anyone knows the areas/suburbs that would be classified as low socio-economic or low income? Also, does anyone have any ideas for what is really needed out there? It might be delivering food baskets to struggling families or handing out bedding to those living on the streets (if there are any here??)

I believe my friends and I can make a real impact on people who are truly in need, and I would love your thoughts and advice. We just want to get out there and put something in motion that may encourage many others to get on board.

Thanks heaps!!

Jess
